To whom it may concern:

I am a Colombian artist and art professor and I have taken French lessons on and off for twenty years now with different teachers. For two years and a half I have had individual lessons with Benoit Cassagnau, and I can say doubtlessly, he has been the best French teacher I have had. Besides his grammatical, phonetic and lexical rigor, with which he makes systematic corrections at each opportunity, his resources for teaching the oral and written language are outstanding.

He shows personal interest for any type of subject and proposes pertinent conversation or questions. His poignant and critical mind stimulates thinking, conversation and writing, hence learning.

It is really a shame that Benoit is leaving Colombia, but it is with great pleasure and confidence that I recommend him as a great French teacher, both for beginners and advanced students.

Thanks for your attention,
